1. In 1947 the IAR Factory in Stalin ceded a branch plant, erected during the war south of the locality of Moreni to the Rumanian Armed Forces for use as a supply depot.
2. The plant covered an area of approximately three hundred hectares and was located in a densely wooded and hilly area east of Colibasi. It consisted of seven large concrete workshops, each 100 meters long. The framework of the buildings was completed in 1944.
3. The plant had an asphalt approach road branching off from the Moreni Colibasi highway about 1,200 meters south of Moreni. A spur track to the Ciurlesti railroad station, about two kilometers southwest of Colibasi, was also available. The factory area was surrounded by a barbed-wire fence.
4. A high-tension line was built from Schitu Golesti for the plant power supply. At the end of World War II, however, only the towers of the projected line were standing.
